

HITLER INVITES FOUR POWERS TO CONFER ON WAR THREAT CRISIS TOMORROW MORNING IN MUNICH

Announcement of Proposed Conference is Made in House of Commons by Chamberlain — Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy Immediately Accept Invitation

(By Kingsbury Smith, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 28 — In a dramatic and totally unexpected move for peace in a mobilized world, Reichsfuehrer Hitler today invited Great Britain, France and Italy to participate in a four-power conference in Munich tomorrow morning.

Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain, Premier Deladier of France, and Premier Mussolini of Italy instantly accepted the invitation.

Chamberlain announced the Fuehrer's welcomed gesture of peace at the end of a long exposition of the European war crisis before the House of Commons.

He informed them at the same time that Hitler has promised to withhold mobilization of the German army for 24 hours. Chamberlain finished his speech and told how Hitler had expressed himself as willing to risk war for the Sudetenland, described in detail his heartbreaking, unsuccessful efforts of mediation, and added amid a tense silence:

"I have something else to tell the House now.

"Herr Hitler has promised to withhold mobilization for 24 hours, and has invited M. Daladier, Signor Mussolini and myself to meet him in Munich tomorrow.

"I shall go and see what I can do as a last effort."

BERLIN, Sept. 28—Reichsfuehrer Hitler will accept any "reasonable solution" of the Czech crisis but "immediate evacuation of Czech troops and police from the Sudetenland" is essential.

This was the message given by well informed sources, to International News Service today, as U. S. Ambassador Hugh Wilson called at the Foreign Office and formally called the German government's attention to President Roosevelt's second message to the Fuehrer, appealing for peaceful negotiations.

It was pointed out in high quarters there is "much falsification" regarding Sudetenland abroad.

Nazi circles complained, however, that a London newspaper published a map wholly distorting the proposed occupation depth.

BERLIN, Sept. 28—(INS)—Reports that large forces of German troops are moving toward Czechoslovakia's frontiers spread through Berlin today in the wake of last night's gigantic military demonstration which passed through the capital under the eyes of Chancellor Hitler.

But reports that the Reich was poised for a sudden blow against the Czechs today appeared to have been dispelled by an official dispatch circulated by the German news agency, DNB.

LONDON, Sept. 28—Jammed to the doors with Americans seeking refuge from war danger, the boat train for the Queen Mary pulled out of Waterloo station a few minutes after noon today, reminiscent of the days of 1914.

Many prominent American visitors and tourists were among those who acted on advice of the U. S. Embassy, and started to journey home. Among those sailing on the Queen Mary, were Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, the former Lady Ashley, Governor A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, and Claire Luce, the actress.

Few of them had anything much to say, except that they would be glad to get home. Fairbanks was a little more talkative, his famous smile replaced by a look of worry.

"The situation is certainly extremely serious," he said. "But I think that England and France have called Hitler's bluff. He is surely crazy if he fights now."

"OPEN DOOR" AT HARRISBURG IS PLEDGED BY JUDGE JAMES

McKEESPORT, Sept. 28—"Pennsylvania may witness the worst scandal in its history if the lid is ever pried off the Earle Administration," said Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James last night as he addressed a large political gathering here. The Republican candidate for Governor appealed for an "open-door" government at Harrisburg.

As the jurist formally opened his campaign in Democratic Allegheny county, he charged the Earle Administration had been found guilty in the court of public opinion of "abusing the trust that has been reposed in them by the citizens of Pennsylvania."

Besides denouncing the Democratic State Administration for seeking to withhold facts pertaining to management of the affairs of the Commonwealth, Judge James pledged the steel workers he would initiate an industrial recovery program to give them increased employment.

Centering his attack on Gov. Earle as well as Senator Joseph F. Guffey, as Democratic State campaign manager,

Judge James said every time "we try to open the door down there in Harrisburg, down goes the lid."

"The Earle Administration," he told McKeesport voters at the luncheon meeting, "is one step ahead of a Grand Jury and just two steps ahead of disgrace. Then George Earle has the

The money, together with a $20,500 PWA grant, will be used to construct a municipal water system and fire alarm system.

Negotiations for the purchase of land for the pumping station have been completed, and the sinking of well No. 1 has reached the depth of 140 feet.

Actual construction must be started not later than the 29th of October, according to PWA regulations.

Struck in the chest by a piece of metal hurled with terrific force when an ensilage cutter exploded as the result of having become clogged, Henry S. Shull, aged 46, a well-known Plumstead township farmer, was instantly killed a short time after 2:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, September 17th.

With his son, Elmer, Mr. Shull went to the home of a neighbor, Samuel C. Myers, to assist in filling a silo. For some cause the cutter became clogged and Mr. Shull, his son Elmer, Mr. Myers and others assisting with the work attempted to remove the volume of ensilage which had collected in the cutter.

As Mr. Shull was about to remove the pipe through which the ensilage is blown into the silo the cutter exploded and hurled bits of metal in all directions. One of them struck Mr. Shull with the result that he suffered a crushed chest.

Mrs. Shull and three of the children were at the Doylestown Fair when the tragedy took place. Friends immediately called them and they were taken to the Myers home by Elwood B. Melcher, who also was attending the fair.

Coroner H. Clayton Moyer, Blooming Glen, who was summoned, made an investigation and issued a certificate, stating that death was due to accident.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

The Effect On Us

Washington, Sept. 27.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S appeal for peace was one utterance to which his opponents can subscribe as wholeheartedly as his supporters.

It was the sort of thing to be expected from a great national leader sufficiently detached to see the awful consequences of a general war and deeply concerned for the salvation of the civilized world of which his own country is so large and inseparable a part.

THE European crisis is so vastly overshadowing in importance that both the economic and political aspects of our domestic affairs are altered and all decisions are temporarily suspended until the storm passes or bursts. Even though, in case of a general war, we remain indefinitely aloof the effect upon our whole fabric is sure to be as great as it is now unpredictable. No man whether in the White House or outside knows definitely where the great conflict ultimately will swing us. What we do know for certain is this—that while American sentiment is far more flamingly anti-Hitler now than it was anti-Kaiser in 1914, still, the overwhelming desire of the people to stay out of war is even greater.

At an adjourned meeting of Quakertown Town Council, Thursday evening, September 29th, at eight o'clock, bids on the proposed municipal building will be received and opened.

The project is one in which the borough is to get PWA aid to the extent of $22,770. The estimated cost of the new borough building has been given as $51,000, which would mean that the borough's share would be $28,230.

Differ On Preparedness

London, Sept. 28—A sharp difference of opinion between the Nazi party and the German general staff regarding the Reichsfuehrer's readiness for war was indicated in private advices reaching here from Basle, Switzerland, today.

Reports involved stated the Nazis actually ordered German mobilization for today. The General Staff, the advice said, refused to co-operate, and insisted that a denial of mobilization reports cabled abroad were issued.

An exchange telegram dispatch from Paris stated that considerable interest had been aroused and by the fact that denial of the mobilization report emanated from the War Ministry in Berlin, and not from the Propaganda Ministry as might normally be expected.

BRISTOLIAN SAYS HURRICANE ROCKED BLDG. LIKE CRADLE

Mrs. James Ridge and Friend Tell of Trees Falling in Every Direction

A former Bristol resident and a friend, now visiting in Bristol, as well as a present resident here, had nerve-racking experiences while in New England during the hurricane and tidal wave of last week.

Mrs. James Blanche, 1247 Radcliffe street, is glad to be home after experiencing over four hours in a three-story apartment house that "rocked like a cradle."

In company with her sister, Miss Anna McBride, Germantown, Mrs. Blanche was visiting in New England, leaving Hyannis on Wednesday they reached East Providence, R. I., at two p. m. In her own words Mrs. Blanche tells that "The storm struck between 2:30 and three o'clock. It seemed so strange, for it had been a beautiful day. The sun shone brightly. Then all became dark, the wind blew and became stronger each minute. For four hours it lashed and whirled, but there was not such a heavy rain with it. All the while the building rocked like a cradle, and we were without lights."

George Vanzant Tendered A Testimonial Dinner

In honor of George Vanzant, 1415 Pond street, a surprise testimonial dinner was given last evening by the Philadelphia Electric Company Good Fellowship Club, comprised of employees of that company in the Bristol and Newtown districts. The affair took place in the Temperance House, Newtown.

Mr. Vanzant, building management representative at Bristol, is to be retired from active duty on October 1st, after 21 years of service with the company. He started employment as gas fitter with the old East Penn Gas and Electric Company in 1917, being thus engaged until 1925, when due to an operation, it was necessary for him to undertake lighter employment, and he was transferred to the building management department.

Martin J. Fallon, Jr., president of the Good Fellowship Club, served as toastmaster, and introduced the following officials: Daniel Atkinson, superintendent of the building management department; C. R. Holland, supervisor of the Bristol and Doylestown districts; W. E. Scott, gas supervisor of the Newtown district. Each of these addressed the gathering of 50, speaking in high terms of Mr. Vanzant and his service with the company, and wishing him enjoyment of his well-earned retirement.

Following the dinner Mr. Fallon, on behalf of the employees, presented Mr. Vanzant with a walnut combination smoking stand and magazine rack, in the compartment of which was a box of the recipient's favorite cigars.

The menu was as follows: Fruit cocktail, mushroom soup, salad, roast chicken or duckling, mashed potatoes, gravy, dressing, lima beans, cranberry sauce, pie a la mode, coffee, mints, nuts.

SOMETHING IN A NAME

What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet. We have believed implicitly in this dictum ever since Shakespeare pronounced it in Romeo and Juliet, but like many another wise saw it now seems open to question. Would a rose keep its appeal if it bore the label of a noxious weed?

Beauty is relative and depends on the point of view of the beholder. The Occidental and Oriental standards of pulchritude differ so widely that the toast of Broadway could walk down the main stem of Bali without attracting any more notice than any other tourist. Moreover, a pretty girl doesn't seem nearly so attractive if you don't like her name, says Dr. G. H. S. Razran of Columbia University, who offers a mass of data to prove his point in this highly inflammatory subject.

The direct bearing of national or race prejudice on taste is revealed by the learned man who asked the opinion of 100 persons concerning the charm rating of a number of girls whose photographs were shown first without identification and then with names attached, as well as nationality and social position. Alas, many of the beauties of the first classification lost their laurels on the second. But several regained their position on a third judging which was conducted after the judges had been served a sumptuous dinner.

Of course, all of this proves nothing, but does confirm the suspicion that there is no hard and fast rule, that beauty exists not alone in the eye of the beholder, that dining changes the aspect of the world, that a rose by another name could be something else, the poet to the contrary notwithstanding.

DOCTORS DISAGREE

So many departments of modern education have been built on the premise of the intelligence quotient that the newest announcement of the findings of a noted psychologist may prove a challenge to the present curriculum design. Dr. Beth L. Wellman of Iowa State University, presenting a report of the result of years of study, voices a warning that not only heredity but early environment can cause feeble-mindedness, or the opposite, in children.

The consensus of the opinion of psychologists is that changes in I. Q. are as a rule small and rare, but the contrary opinions of Dr. Wellman cannot be ignored. She does not agree that the quotient is so nearly fixed by birth as to change only slightly from babyhood to old age. Her report charts the development of children whose I. Q. has changed as much as 40 points, a reversal so great as to bring the subjects up to the genius level or down to feeble-mindedness.

Bristolian Says Hurricane Rocked Building Like Cradle

Trees crashed and buildings were whirled around. It was not until after seven that the wind subsided, and we breathed more easily.

"The tide had been coming up all the time, and we learned later that the tide registered nearly 120 miles an hour. The only damage done to the home we were visiting was that some shingles were blown off, and there was not a building in the town where roofs were not damaged, even if no other damage was done.

"No one knows what an experience like that is—to sit in a chair and wonder if the house will topple over, or what will happen next, while all around is confusion and destruction. We could see huge trees being uprooted, and they took with them everything in their path. At one spot three entire blocks of asphalt were ripped up. A large elm in the lawn of my relative's home bent to the ground countless times, only to snap back and strike the house."

In recounting a trying ordeal which her cousin had, Mrs. Blanche told that, with other co-workers from a fire concern, decided to endeavor to reach home in one of the company's trucks, inasmuch as trolleys and buses were at a standstill. "When the water of the tidal wave struck the section of the city they were in, as they started into a tunnel, two of the lighter weight men in the rear of the truck reached above their heads and grabbed pilings overly tie our hands and render us impotent to intervene if and when that seemed the intelligent and right thing to do.

THERE is another phase: Suppose, as regardless of sentiment, everyone, including the President, must hope, we are able to stay out; the question then arises as to whether a general European war will further damage our economy and deepen our depression or whether it will result in a great war boom which, for a while at least, will bring prosperity and lessen the acuteness of our unemployment and relief problems. The answer to these questions is in Washington. They hinge upon the attitude of the Congress and the course of the President. As to either of these there are now no definite assurances—nor will there be soon.

IN THE next Congress, unquestionably there will be a strong effort to tighten our present neutrality law—or if not to tighten, at least to resist any effort to modify or amend. If this is successful, it would seem to mean a loss of business, accompanied by increased unemployment, social unrest and real economic dislocation. Certainly, our European export business, except for the little which would be possible under the cash-and-carry provision of the Neutrality Act, would be wholly blotted out. Our foreign trade would be limited to the South American republics, where there is danger that the Mexican method of appropriating the property of others without compensation may become contagious and where Germany and Japan, able to pay in materials rather than money, already are making great gains.

ON THE OTHER HAND a repeal of the neutrality act so as to free our hands for a business expansion mainly due to war might increase the chances of our being drawn into the conflict—or at any rate, hasten the day. There would be strong pressure from business for neutrality modification and strong pressure from the more complete isolationists to prevent it. The fact, of course, is that this country cannot be kept out of war either by legislation or slogans. It may stay out a while, but no one can be sure how long. There are too many things that can happen against which no President can guard and which no Congress can avert. The best we can do is hope, knowing full well that no one really wins a war.

Liberty WAS NEVER EXTINGUISHED Over Night

FREE GOVERNMENT gives way to dictatorship by gradual stages. In every country where dictators now oppress a regimented people, the death of freedom was preceded by two significant steps. First, newspapers were throttled, terrorized, and censored into subservience. Second, the voice of the people became mute, and instead there is heard the voice of interested government propaganda. Free expression of public opinion became illegal and autocracy now tells the people what to think. Opposition has become hopeless because it has become inarticulate. America is still the land of individual liberty . . . but Americans cannot remain a free people unless freedom of the press continues. Regardless of what your own political convictions may be, you and your newspapers are partners in safeguarding the American democratic ideal. Support your newspaper—protect its independence and vitality—for its welfare is your welfare—its freedom is your freedom.

Former Bristol Woman Held On Serious Charges

Herman Petrillo, 49, of near Langhorne.

The husband, Ferdinand Alfonsi, 49, was formerly a cement contractor, but has recently been a WPA employee. He is reported in a serious condition in National Stomach Hospital, Philadelphia, suffering, police say, from poison given him.

Details of the alleged plot were outlined by William A. Landvoigt, supervising agent in charge of the U. S. Secret Service in Philadelphia.

During the hearing Mrs. Alfonsi, a small, smartly dressed woman, sobbed and cried, and frequently interrupted testimony, to shout "That's a lie! I did nothing like that." Petrillo grinned and appeared to be unconcerned.

Both were held on three counts: "Attempted murder," "soliciting to commit a murder," and "conspiracy to murder." They were arrested Saturday, it was testified, and held until Monday night, when slated at the Belgrade and Clearfield streets station, Philadelphia.

Schwartz, a Philadelphia detective, testified a man who lives near 19th and Diamond, met Petrillo last June at a party in Port Richmond. When he asked for a loan of $20 he was asked, detectives say, "How would you like to make $500?"

Petrillo then told this man to visit Alfonsi on the pretense of giving him a contracting job and then to kill him with an 18-inch piece of lead pipe. The man made the visit but nothing happened, Schwartz said, and Petrillo told him to knock Alfonsi down stairs after striking him to "make the death look accidental."

The man was quoted by the detectives as saying he "didn't like the idea" and was told that Mrs. Alfonsi was going to visit relatives in Bristol and would hang a towel on a picket fence outside the house as a signal that no one else but her husband was home.

Schwartz said the man went to the place about September 1, learned Alfonsi was sick, and then got in touch with Stanley Phillips, a Secret Service agent he knew.

Landvoigt's version of what happened differs from the detective's from this point. The secret service head said Phillips had gained Petrillo's confidence earlier and had agreed to work in conjunction with him.

"Petrillo agreed to sell the agent, and the agent did purchase, a quantity of counterfeit money," Landvoigt said. "Meantime Petrillo had other irons in the fire, one of which was the bumping off of Alfonsi. Our agent was supposed to do the job and he was to get $500 for his part."

"Meantime other informers were bringing us information concerning Alfonsi and when we learned he was violently ill, we had to work quickly and inform the police. With a police surgeon under the guise of a private physician, we gained access to the Alfonsi home and had him removed to a hospital."

"The proposed method for the slaying was for the agent to gain admittance pretending to be a repair man, and to do the job so that the death would appear to be an accident. The agent, to protect the proposed victim, suggested a drowning so as to get him out of the place."

Landvoigt said a Hoboken man is already under $10,000 bail in connection with counterfeiting charges involving Petrillo in New Jersey and said Petrillo would be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner James H. Malloy later on Federal charges.

Detectives said that they took Mrs. Alfonsi to the hospital the day after her husband was taken there and at that time he accused her of attempting to poison him. She denied it.

Schwartz said Alfonsi was unaware of the $2,000 policy his wife had taken out and had signed an application under the impression it was another paper.

is given a most unusual setting, depicting the interior of a great national broadcasting headquarters, where the intricate plot is developed to its amazing finish.

The film deals with the mysterious murder of Mr. Kluck, soft drink radio advertising magnate, who meets death in a control room of the building by a method which, seemingly, leaves no clue.

BRISTOL

Marjorie Main, who creates the difficult role of Nora in Monogram's "Romance of the Limberlost," now at the Bristol Theatre, is no stranger to Monogram. Miss Main has already won acclaim for her portrayal of Jackie Cooper's mother in "Boy of the Streets," the Monogram picture that won the Parents' Magazine Award and was acclaimed one of the great pictures of last year.

Miss Main has been a top-notch Broadway star for years. Her most recent triumphs on the stage were in the New York productions of "Dead End" and "The Women." When Hollywood beckoned, she was signed to play in the picture the "Dead End" character she had created on the stage—mother of the gangster. At the preview, when her short scene ended, a sophisticated preview audience burst into spontaneous applause, so great and powerful was her performance.

"Why did you come, den? You mak' mech trouble here!" She almost hissed at the startled Joyce.

BENSALEM OWLS ARE IN NEED OF GOOD LINEMEN

Only Two More Practice Days
Remain Before Opening
Of the Season

TEAM HARD HIT

Graduation Last Year Cut Big
Swath in Some Positions
On the Team

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 28.—With only two more practice days left before they open their 1938 season, the Bensalem Owls, under Coach George Reimer, have plenty of work to do if they hope to take the inaugural tilt.

The team was hard hit by graduation last year, especially in the line where Coach Reimer has been experimenting since the first days of practice in the early part of September. As far as the backfield is concerned, however, he is well set with a trio of veteran backs returning this season for action and a couple of pretty good prospects coming up from last year's J. V. squad to fill the one vacancy.

Jack Scarborough will again do the signal calling as well as most of the punting and passing. Moreover, he will lead the interference for teammates on the offense, and will, himself, lug the ball around no little.

Bob Scarborough and Joe Cahill will again fill in at the halfback posts with Bob dropping back to the safety position on the defense. Cahill is a good pass receiver and a fine defense man, while Bob Scarborough is speedy with the ball and once in the open, he may be hard to stop. As a matter of fact, the entire backfield is very fast, having three track men composing it. For beside Bob Scarborough, both his brother, Jack, and Joe Cahill, are also track stars and can cover ground once through the line or out in the clear.

The fourth position in the backfield will probably go to Leo Riley, a newcomer from Northeast Catholic High of Philadelphia. However, Bob Whyte, a holdover from the '37 varsity array, and Al Despo, a first string substitute from last year's team, are in there battling for the last starting berth. Despo and Whyte are especially fine defense men in backing up the line and both can hit the line rather hard.

But the fine and success of the entire team this year rests upon a very weak and inexperienced line. Should the boys on the forward wall come through rather unexpectedly, then the Owls may go places this year. Otherwise, there will be no surprise packages for the Owls to bring home among their host of '38 grid opponents.

Of the starting lineup last year, only Norman Tettemer, one of last year's wingmen, is available for service this season. Vic Swadis, end; Franny Borman and Alvin Marshall, tackles; Bill Getz and John Chapman, guards; and Bob McGovern, center, all have graduated, leaving the front line of defense wide open for replacements this year.

Even Andy Devine, Charlie Bauer, Hal Cassile, Charlie Mudie and Frank Wagner, all substitute linemen, have departed from the hallways of Bensalem High.

In looking over the vacant spots, therefore, one doesn't need glasses to see the predicament Coach Reimer is faced with in rebuilding the forward wall. This was evidenced very conspicuously in the Bensalem-Jenkintown practice session of a week ago in which the line was very weak on both the offense as well as the defense.

George Strickler, who was a halfback on the Junior High team last year, has been shifted to the center post on the varsity this year and is coming along very nicely so far. Another who has been shifted to try this spot is Tettemer, but if Strickler comes through, he will return to his wing post. Otherwise he may be the regular man over the ball. Bill Lamon is another who is fighting for the center post.

At guard, Coach Reimer is experimenting with Charles Lehr, a member of last year's J. V. outfit, and Elwood Silecox, another up from the J. V.'s. However, Bill Andrews, a newcomer to the school, is also in on the battle for a starting assignment at guard and has a good chance to make the grade.

Nick Marini and Charlie Bogarde seem to have the inside track for the tackle berths. The former has shown up very well in practice and is a good defense man. Bogarde is up from the J. V. squad.

If Buck Friel and Harry Baker come through at the flank posts, Tettemer will probably be shifted to fill the center vacancy. But if either fails to clutch a starting berth, Tettemer will again return to his old familiar spot. Friel can develop into a good wingman if he wants to while Baker needs more experience.

Others seeking positions on the varsity combination are Henry Killian, Warren Jester, Bill Clark, Ted Devoe, Owen McGinley, Stan Wenkos, Russ Jones, Dan Fleming, Henry Hunt, Ray Chelnaki, Bob Reed, Vincent Hassler and Ray Puma, all linemen, and Art Hill, Henry Stachewski, Mayhew Call, Jack Thayer, Herm Puma, and Wally Oppman, all backs.

The Owls open their new campaign Saturday when they journey to Willow Grove to battle the Upper Merion High eleven. Should they unexpectedly come out on the long end of the deal in this tilt, they may be tough to beat for more teams than one this season. But their success all depends upon their linemen.

ARENA TONIGHT OPENS WINTER BOXING SEASON

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 28.—The Fall wrestling season will start tonight at the Arena with Promoter Johnny Ipp at the helm for the seventh year. The Arena has been remodeled and is the most comfortable boxing and wrestling club in the state.

A double windup, both matches over the two fall out of three, one hour time limit route, will bring together four of the outstanding names in the mat world. Sander Szabo, Hungarian champion, and long an idol of local fandom, will make his first start here after an absence of three years. Szabo will tangle with Abe (King Kong) Kashey, vaunted Syrian rowdy, and one of the roughest and toughest grapplers in the game. This bout will be a severe test for Szabo as nothing would please Kashey more than to spoil the debut of his enemy, Szabo.

The other half of the twin bill will bring Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, Ireland's greatest athlete, and their "one-man Olympic team," whose athletic records for the hammer throw and shot put still stand in Olympic competition. O'Callaghan is campaigning for the heavyweight crown now owned by Bronko Nagurski and will be making his first appearance in a New Jersey ring. His foe will be the Cardiff Giant, a 347-pound Welshman, with an unpronounceable name. The Giant possesses a belt designating him as the heavyweight champion of South America.

Three 30-minute time limit matches will precede the two main events. The "Golden Terror," 309-pound Australian, whose identity is unknown, will tangle with Jack McArthur, former football hero at St. Mary's College, Dr. Len Hall, well known here, meets Tom Mahoney, classy Florida youngster, and Michele Leone, speedy Italian, faces Jules Strongbow, Cherokee Indian from Broken Bow, Oklahoma.

The first bout will start at 8:30 p. m.

prepared today for the two final steps before war—general mobilization and formation of a national union government.

The former, it was learned, already has advanced to far greater stages than is officially admitted although the exact extent cannot be determined owing to a new method of calling up reservists by cross-sections instead of full classes.

But as Europe drifted steadily toward the zero hour, it became increasingly apparent that if France is not ready for war at this moment, it will be in a few hours to come.

"If they begin to take the lid off down at Harrisburg we may see the worst scandal in the history of Pennsylvania."

"An Administration which seeks to hide from the public the manner in which it has been conducting the affairs of the State Government is not worthy of our commendation or our stamp of approval," said the jurist.

"It may not be possible," he added, "that before the 8th of November any impartial body will learn the truth about what's happened in Harrisburg."

"I am of the opinion, however, and I can say this without question that in the court of public opinion of Pennsylvania the Democratic State Administration has been found guilty of abusing the trust that has been reposed in it."

"When I am Governor of Pennsylvania, I am going to use my experience in the coal mines and as District Attorney for seven years to dig in, and when we uncover something and the Democrats are deserving of prosecution, we are going to put them behind the bars, put them in the jail where they belong."

"We'll put those that are guilty in a home, they ought to be in, because I don't believe they are at home unless they are behind the jail bars if what they say is true of what's been going on at Harrisburg for the last four years."

"Senator Guffey started it last spring. You all remember that little card table down there behind closed doors when they were dealing out Pennsylvania. George Earle was sitting at the table; Matt McCloskey was there, and so was Dave Lawrence and a few of the other boys."

"Joe Guffey expected to get a pat hand and a full house at that. And then he found out and he said: 'I got a job-tailor flush here.' Then Joe began to yell bloody murder. And now the distinguished junior Senator from Pennsylvania is the campaign manager for the Democratic ticket."

"And, if you remember, for three and one-half years, George Earle pointed with pride to Charley Margiotti as that distinguished Attorney General, the greatest Attorney General in the history of Pennsylvania—until Charley began to tell you the truth about what went on behind closed doors."

"Now that the finger of suspicion has been placed on them, they begin to say 'it's Republican propaganda.'"

Senator Davis called upon Gov. Earle to tell the voters whether he would have supported the Supreme Court packing bill and the Reorganization bill, both defeated in Congress, if he had been sitting in the Senate.

Senator Davis voted against both measures. Earle has repeatedly said, if elected he would support President Roosevelt 100 per cent.

Senator Davis also demanded that politics be removed from the national relief set-up and that the Democrats "quit macing WPA employees to finance their campaign."

Plan To Build New School At Morrisville

the borough only $2,128 annually for 30 years for each $100,000 of the total expenditure involved.

Completion of the auditorium has not been definitely decided upon, although pressure is being brought to bear upon the school board to include this improvement in the project.

The unusually low cost to the borough is made possible through arrangements made to procure a grant of 45 per cent of the total cost from the Public Works Administration at Washington and 22 per cent from the Pennsylvania General State Authority, created to aid school districts in a building program.

The remaining 33 per cent must be met by the borough, but instead of obtaining the funds through a bond issue—the usual course—the General State Authority will pay Morrisville's share. In turn, the borough will pay back 33 percent in annual allotments over a period of 30 years. At the conclusion of that period, clear title to the school properties would pass to the borough.

A shortage of classroom space has been created by expansion of courses made necessary by a State law raising the age limit from 16 to 18 years for pupils compelled to remain in school.

Another factor in steps being taken to bring about the improvements is the condemnation of the Capitol View School, now used by first and second-grade pupils. Many complaints have been received about the heating and ventilating systems of the school.

"The State Department of Public Instruction, which strongly recommended an expansion of the school plant two years ago," declared a statement issued by the Morrisville school authorities, "has urged the officers of the district to take advantage of this unusual opportunity."

"The elementary and secondary education departments have approved the proposed plan and the school plant department is only awaiting the presentation of satisfactory plans by the architect before giving its approval."

It was pointed out that completion of a one-story wing of the high school would make it possible to bring the shop, the music and the girls' health facilities up to recommended standards.

Erection of the new Capitol View School would bring about abandonment of a two-room annex in Manor Park, another building long condemned.

Hebrew Language Is Now A Living Tongue

I was statistically the only non-Jew in this all-Jewish city of 160,000, and almost the only person who could not speak a word of Hebrew, a dead language thirty years ago, but today as living as American.

They translated a characteristic joke: "The British High Commissioner delivered a broadcast threatening dire punishment if the Arabs did not cease their terror. The next day—the Arabs bombed ten Jews to death, shot six policemen, robbed a bank, stole all the arms from a police barracks, fired at Government House, and burned down a railway station. Highly indignant, the High Commissioner urgently telephoned the Palestine Radio to reserve another ten minutes for a punitive broadcast."

Ireland revived Gaelic, yet not twenty per cent of the people of Eire can use it. Palestine not only revived Hebrew but put it to work in such a way that it has become the universal language of the Jewish National Home. Yiddish is frowned upon and German Jews suffer a shock to discover that German of all languages is definitely taboo. The Jews of Zion do not wish to speak the language of Hitler. English is the accepted auxiliary.

But the Jews of Palestine, united in their ideals and their language, are divided. They are divided between the "good Jews" who follow the official leader of Zionism, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, and the fighting Jews who follow Vladimir Jabotinsky.

Dr. Weizmann, born in White Russia 64 years ago, discovered during the war how to make acetone, an essential ingredient of the high-explosive T. N. T., out of horse chestnuts, and thus helped the Allies win. Partly out of gratitude for this, his friend, Arthur James Balfour, persuaded the British government, anxious anyway to win the support of world Jewry, to make the famous declaration promising the Jewish National Home in Palestine. Dr. Weizmann preaches self-restraint and the majority of Jews follow him. He appeals to the wisdom of maturity.

Jabotinsky, born in Odessa 58 years ago, discovered that, given a fighting chance, Jews are high-explosive fighters. They only number 16,551,000 out of a world population of around 2,000,000,000 or less than one Jew to one hundred others. This was exactly their ratio in Germany. Poland with the highest percentage of any country except Palestine has one Jew to ten others. Palestine is the first country since Biblical times in which the Jews have acquired as big a minority as one in three. With this reduction of their disadvantage they have become rivals to the Irish as fighters for their national rights.

Hitler helped make Jabotinsky a serious rival of Weizmann by so maltreating the Jews that millions know today they have small chance of living unless in Palestine they can create a real Jewish state of adequate size. Hitler thus has become the greatest Zionist of them all. Jabotinsky preaches fighting, and the minority, but a growing minority of Jews, follow him. He appeals to the zeal of youth.

Both Weizmann and Jabotinsky are distinguished by ambition so burning that like Trotsky and Stalin, they are too large for one country to hold. Jabotinsky, forbidden by the British to return to Palestine, spends his time in Europe building the Revisionist or New Zionist Organization to take over, the hopes, some day the leadership from Weizmann.

His young men of the Jewish National Volunteer Force, the Irgun Zevai Leumi, in Palestine possess today, illegally around 3,000 rifles, a few machine-guns and a large quantity of explosives. They are constantly adding to their arms. Given a free hand, they claim they could recruit 12,000 Jewish soldiers, stamp out the Arab Terror, and create a self-defending Jewish state.

Meanwhile they are busy fighting the Arabs, the British and the conservative Jews of Dr. Weizmann. When the Arabs kill one of their members, they hang at least two Arabs in a public place. When the Jewish Agency threatens to turn over one of their members to the Military Courts, the Jabotinsky Jews kidnap an Agency man and promise to give him whatever sentence is given their man, hanging included.

Technically the Arabs are at a disadvantage with the young-fighting Jews. When Arabs set a bomb they consider themselves lucky to kill five or ten Jews. When the Irgun Zevai Leumi set a bomb they usually kill forty to fifty Arabs.

"The self-restraint forced upon the Jews of Palestine by the Jewish Agency is only interpreted by the Arabs as cowardice," they told me. "It has made the British yield to the Arab, because he is aggressive. It has made world Jewry doubt the success of Palestine."

"We know that the British Ambassador in Iraq is now negotiating with the Mufti of Jerusalem, who is directing the terror from his exile in Beirut. The negotiations aim at stopping the Arab terror in Palestine. The British know they can only do this by paying the Arabs at our expense. The first condition is naturally the abandonment of the Mandate, the final liquidation of our national hopes. These negotiations prove that murder pays."

"We are sure that a united physical front of the whole of Palestine Jewry can easily crush the Arab terror. Our Jewry as a whole is ready for open retaliation and all the dangers it incurs. The only obstacle to its realization is meanwhile the Jewish Agency to which the great bulk of our Jewry is opposed and filled with bitterness. We fight for the Mandate; the Arabs fight against it, but the British favor the Arabs. Why? Because they use more force."

The Revisionists reject Partition as flatly as the Arabs do. They point out that the area originally proposed by the Peel Commission to be given to the Jews covers only 1800 square miles, and already has a population of 550,000 or about 300 to the square mile, more than most European countries, and leaves no room for immigration.

Acceptance of Partition would kill all hopes of making Palestine a refuge for the victims of anti-Semitism, whom the Revisionists reckon at 6,500,000 counting the Baltic countries, and Yemen, and including the part-Jews condemned by the Nuremberg laws, in the Central European countries which follow or are about to follow Hitler's anti-Jew principles.

Their own program, the Revisionists reckon, could provide a home for ten million. As they put it, "The boundaries of the integral Jewish-to-be are those laid down in the original Mandate for Palestine including Trans-Jordan. The territory within these boundaries has an area of 45,000 square miles and could hold ten million inhabitants."

This is boundless optimism, as it would mean about 225 inhabitants to the square mile of a territory most of which is now desert, but the self-confidence of the Jewish youth in Palestine is boundless. Their achievements warrant the hope that given the territory of their desire they might provide for half the number they claim they could accommodate.

With irrigation they have turned large tracts of desert into gardens. Place for even another two or three million in Palestine would lighten the night which now envelops European Jewry.

The Revisionists claim that Weizmann's Zionist Organization possessed a maximum at any one time of 800,000 "shekel holders," dues paying members with voting rights, while Jabotinsky's New Zionist Organization had 713,000 adherents at its Foundation Congress in 1935. But the Weizmann Organization recognized by the British is not likely to be displaced. The old Zionist Congress remains the official body.

As Moshe Shertok, head of the Political Department of the Jewish Agency, said to me, "Revisionism will not be important if Partition is rejected by the Jews at the next Zionist Congress, and it will not be important, though more so, if Partition is accepted by all Jews at the Congress. It will be important, however, if the Partition plan is a real issue, not too bad to be rejected by all, and not good enough for everybody to accept."

"How odd, of God, to choose the Jews," quoted one young man. "Did you hear about the delegation the German Jews sent to Heaven to ask the Lord for one favor? He asked what it was and they told him: 'Dear God, for 5,000 years we have been Thy chosen people and now we humbly beg Thee to choose somebody else.'"

From Iraq came the news that the leading Jews and rabbis in Baghdad had telegraphed the League of Nations and the British Colonial Office thus: "Iraq condemns Zionism and support their brethren the Arabs of Palestine. We urge you to undertake a policy of justice and restore peace and security to the Arab east." Among the signatories were the Chief Rabbi Sassoon Kadoury and many notables.

Baghdad Jews quailed under the Iraq Arab threat. Palestine's Jews are not yielding to the Arab Terror. The existence under their feet of the soil promised to them first they believe by God, and last it is certain by Britain, makes a sturdier man of the Palestine Jew. They have fiery hatred and contempt for the Jew who would deny, renounce or betray his race. They accept the challenge of Hitler's anti-Jew world, and are proud of being Jews.

The British condemn the Jewish counter-Terror. The Jewish Agency abhors it. But the British take into account its possibilities and for good or evil it exercises a certain restraint upon any impulse precipitately to abandon their pledged word to give not to the Jews of Palestine alone, but to the Jews of the world, a National Home.
